ANNOUNCEMENTS

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Seats of the Mighty, Glittering Colonial Five Reel Spectacle.

One of the mightiest feature film spectacles of the season is the massive and the Colonial Theatre today, adapted from the story of Sir Gilbert Parker. The plot deals with Robert Moray, a Major Washington's expedition against the French, and how he is captured and taken to Quebec by orders of Voltaire, in supreme command over New France, who had previously been despatched by La Pompadour, rival of Du Barry in the affections of the King, an effort to secure the Du Barry letters. The effect of Moray's capture and the result of the ultimate is vividly told in this remarkable story of Colonial days, which for gorgeousness has never been exceeded in any picture. Glittering costumes, with each other for beauty and sumptuousness, and the scenes of the Fawcett Court utterly beggar description, both for magnitude and spectacular beauty. Lionel Barrymore, long a favorite at the Colonial Theatre in Biograph films, plays lead, and this is a sufficient guarantee of its excellence. The splendid comedy completes the bill. Prices for today are matinee 10c, evening 10c, children 5c.

GOOD COMPANY! FINE PLAY!

Big Business Assured at the Davis Theatre Next Week.

The patrons of the Davis theatre next week will get their money's worth with the Myrtle-Harder company. This is the 14th annual tour of this excellent organization, and when one stops to reflect at seeing such plays as Louis Luman's "The Captain," "The New York City's latest success; David Reliance's wonderful production, "The Golden West," and two years at the Belasco theatre, Cohen & Harris' greatest of all crook plays, "The Thief," Harry Armstrong's powerful play on the marriage question, "The Divorced," and Southern Skies, millions have laughed and grieved at this grand old play of the south, and what happened to Mary, better than Shore Acres, with the original scenery, and with a clever cast of actors, which will not suffer in comparison with the original cast, is surely entertainment that one should not miss, and the price is within the reach of all.

Endorsements from other cities claim that the Myrtle-Harder company broke all records for large attendance, and that their performances of these recent New York plays would compare favorably with the original productions at $1.50 and $2.00 prices. Elevating a husband will be played Monday afternoon and night. Matinee daily.

DR. SYKES' LECTURE

At Slater Memorial Upon Robert Louis Stevenson, With Lantern Slides.

On Monday evening, March 1, Dr. Frederick H. Sykes, president of Connecticut college, will give a lecture at Slater hall on Robert Louis Stevenson, under the auspices of the College Club. Dr. Sykes, who was formerly professor of English literature at Columbia and university extension lecturer, has gathered a wealth of material about Stevenson which is made even more entertaining by a large number of excellent lantern slides of scenes associated with the author's life in Scotland, California, the Adirondacks and Asia. There are also many portraits from childhood to the last photograph ever taken. The view of the memorial at St. Gaudens was made in the studio of the sculptor. The picturesqueness of Stevenson's life, the fresh lovable quality of his personality, the humor, poetry, grace and romance of his books lend ready material for an entertaining and instructive lecture. The proceeds of the lecture will go towards the $3,000 fund which the College club is raising to establish a scholarship at the college for the benefit of Academy students.
